Dejection: An Ode
(excerpted)

III

My genial spirits fail;
And what can these avail
To lift the smothering weight from off my breast?
It were a vain endeavour,
Though I should gaze for ever
On that green light that lingers in the west:
I may not hope from outward forms to win
The passion and the life, whose fountains are within.

IV

O Lady! we receive but what we give,
And in our life alone does Nature live:
Ours is her wedding garment, ours her shroud!
And would we aught behold, of higher worth,
Than that inanimate cold world allowed
To the poor loveless ever-anxious crowd,
Ah! from the soul itself must issue forth
A light, a glory, a fair luminous cloud
Enveloping the Earth—
And from the soul itself must there be sent
A sweet and potent voice, of its own birth,
Of all sweet sounds the life and element!

V

O pure of heart! thou need'st not ask of me
What this strong music in the soul may be!
What, and wherein it doth exist,
This light, this glory, this fair luminous mist,
This beautiful and beauty-making power.
Joy, virtuous Lady! Joy that ne'er was given,
Save to the pure, and in their purest hour,
Life, and Life's effluence, cloud at once and shower,
Joy, Lady! is the spirit and the power,
Which wedding Nature to us gives in dower
A new Earth and new Heaven,
Undreamt of by the sensual and the proud—
Joy is the sweet voice, Joy the luminous cloud—
We in ourselves rejoice!
And thence flows all that charms or ear or sight,
All melodies the echoes of that voice,
All colours a suffusion from that light.

VI

There was a time when, though my path was rough,
This joy within me dallied with distress,
And all misfortunes were but as the stuff
Whence Fancy made me dreams of happiness:
For hope grew round me, like the twining vine,
And fruits, and foliage, not my own, seemed mine.
But now afflictions bow me down to earth:
Nor care I that they rob me of my mirth;
But oh! each visitation
Suspends what nature gave me at my birth,
My shaping spirit of Imagination.
For not to think of what I needs must feel,
But to be still and patient, all I can;
And haply by abstruse research to steal
From my own nature all the natural man—
This was my sole resource, my only plan:
Till that which suits a part infects the whole,
And now is almost grown the habit of my soul.

43. The speaker in Coleridge's "Dejection: An Ode" addresses a "Lady" (line 47 and elsewhere), who, it is generally agreed, is

A) Christabel.
B) Erato, the muse of lyric poetry.
C) Sarah Fricker.
D) Sara Hutchinson.
E) Dorothy Wordsworth.

44. Ultimately, the "sole resource" (line 91) for the poet's inspiration is

A) his genial spirits.
B) his Imagination.
C) Joy.
D) Nature.
E) the sensual and the proud.

45. The overarching metric pattern of Coleridge's romantic ode is

A) dactylic pentameter.

A) bathos.
B) metalepsis.
C) parenthesis.
D) sublimity.
E) zeugma.

Items 48-50 refer to Samuel Taylor Coleridge's

Kubla Kahn

In Xanadu did Kubla Khan
A stately pleasure-dome decree:
Where Alph, the sacred river, ran
Through caverns measureless to man
Down to a sunless sea.

So twice five miles of fertile ground
With walls and towers were girdled round:
And there were gardens bright with sinuous rills,
Where blossomed many an incense-bearing tree;
And here were forests ancient as the hills,
Enfolding sunny spots of greenery.

But oh! that deep romantic chasm which slanted
Down the green hill athwart a cedarn cover!
A savage place! as holy and enchanted
As e'er beneath a waning moon was haunted
By woman wailing for her demon-lover!
And from this chasm, with ceaseless turmoil seething.
As if this earth in fast thick pants were breathing,
A mighty fountain momently was forced:
Amid whose swift half-intermitted burst
Huge fragments vaulted like rebounding hail,
Or chaffy grain beneath the thresher's flail:
And 'mid these dancing rocks at once and ever
It flung up momently the sacred river.
Five miles meandering with a mazy motion
Through wood and dale the sacred river ran,
Then reached the caverns measureless to man,
And sank in tumult to a lifeless ocean:
And 'mid this tumult Kubla heard from far
Ancestral voices prophesying war!

The shadow of the dome of pleasure
Floated midway on the waves;
Where was heard the mingled measure
From the fountain and the caves.
It was a miracle of rare device,
A sunny pleasure-dome with caves of ice!

A damsel with a dulcimer
In a vision once I saw:
It was an Abyssinian maid,
And on her dulcimer she played,
Singing of Mount Abora.
Could I revive within me
Her symphony and song,
To such a deep delight 'twould win me
That with music loud and long
I would build that dome in air,
That sunny dome! those caves of ice!
And all who heard should see them there,
And all should cry, Beware! Beware!
His flashing eyes, his floating hair!
Weave a circle round him thrice,
And close your eyes with holy dread,
For he on honey-dew hath fed
And drunk the milk of Paradise.

48. The "damsel with a dulcimer" (line 37) of Coleridge's "Kubla Kahn" could serve the speaker in the poem, he suggests, as a

A) dream allegory.
B) femme inspiratrice.
C) femme fatale.
D) manic pixie dream girl.
E) muse.

49. The effectiveness of the imagery found in lines 17-24 depends on (a)

A) hyperbole.
B) litotes.
C) paradox.
D) simile.
E) tautology.

50. The meaning of Coleridge's "Kubla Kahn" is
    A) ambiguous.
    B) explicit.
    C) hidden.
    D) lost.
    E) nonexistent.

Part 3: Ability in Literary Criticism
15 items (2 points each)

Items 51-54 refer to Robert Frost's

Meeting and Passing

As I went down the hill along the wall
There was a gate I had leaned at for the view
And had just turned from when I first saw you
As you came up the hill. We met. But all
We did that day was mingle great and small Footprints in summer dust as if we drew
The figure of our being less than two
But more than one as yet. Your parasol
Pointed the decimal off with one deep thrust.
And all the time we talked you seemed to see
Something down there to smile at in the dust.
(Oh, it was without prejudice to me!)
Afterward I went past what you had passed
Before we met, and you what I had passed.

51. Frost's "Meeting and Passing" is most like a
    A) caudate sonnet.
    B) Miltonic sonnet.
    C) Petrarchan sonnet.

    C) relationship's inaugural exchange.
    D) single, not to be recurring, encounter.
    E) vestigial interpunct.

Items 55-59 refer to Emily Dickinson's

[A Bird came down the Walk]

A Bird came down the Walk—
He did not know I saw—
He bit an Angleworm in halves
And ate the fellow, raw,

And then he drank a Dew
From a convenient Grass—
And then hopped sidewise to the Wall
To let a Beetle pass—

He glanced with rapid eyes
That hurried all around—
They looked like frightened Beads, I thought—
He stirred his Velvet Head

Like one in danger, Cautious,
I offered him a Crumb,
And he unrolled his feathers
And rowed him softer home—

Than Oars divide the Ocean,
Too silver for a seam—
Or Butterflies, off Banks of Noon
Leap, plashless, as they swim.

55. Emily Dickinson's narrative lyric depends on the repeated use of the
    A) apostrophe.
    B) hyperbole.
    C) metaphor.
    D) pun.
    E) simile.

56. If it can be argued that the poem has two perspectives, the important contrast is in terms of

C) naturalist's appreciating a bird's remaining wild.
D) poet's gift for alliteration.
E) woman's squeamishness regarding wild things.

Items 60-63 refer to Rudyard Kipling's

The Explanation

Love and Death once ceased their strife
At the Tavern of Man's Life.
Called for wine, and threw—alas! —
Each his quiver on the grass.
When the bout was o'er they found
Mingled arrows strewed the ground.
Hastily they gathered then
Each the loves and lives of men.
Ah, the fateful dawn deceived!
Mingled arrows each one sheaved;
Death's dread armoury was stored
With the shafts he most abhorred;
Love's light quiver groaned beneath
Venom-headed darts of Death.

Thus it was they wrought our woe
At the Tavern long ago.
Tell me, do our masters know,
Loosing blindly as they fly,
Old men love while young men die?

60. Notwithstanding its formal poetic structure, Kipling's "Explanation" presents human morality as might a(n)

A) dream allegory.

Required tie-breaking essay prompt on the next page.

Part 4: Tie-Breaking Essay (required)

Note well: Contestants who do not write an essay will be disqualified even if they are not involved in any tie.

Note well: Any essay that does not demonstrate a sincere effort to discuss the assigned topic will be disqualified. The judge(s) should note carefully this criterion when breaking ties: ranking of essays for tie-breaking purposes should be based primarily on how well the topic has been addressed.

Three sheets of paper have been provided for this essay; your written response should reflect the Handbook's notion that an essay is a "moderately brief discussion of a restricted topic": something more than just a few sentences.

Read John Brehm's "Sea of Faith," and compose an essay that addresses the tone of Brehm's poem.

Sea of Faith

Once when I was teaching "Dover Beach" to a class of freshmen, a young woman raised her hand and said, "I'm confused about this 'Sea of Faith.'" "Well," I said,
"let's talk about it. We probably need to talk a bit about figurative language.
What confuses you about it?"
"I mean, is it a real sea?" she asked.
"You mean, is it a real body of water that you could point to on a map or visit on a vacation?"
"Yes," she said. "Is it a real sea?"
Oh Christ, I thought, is this where we are?
Next year I'll be teaching them the alphabet and how to sound words out.
I'll have to teach them geography, apparently,
before we can move on to poetry.
I'll have to teach them history, too—
a few weeks on the Dark Ages might be instructive.
"Yes," I wanted to say, "it is.
It is a real sea. In fact it flows right into the Sea of Ignorance
IN WHICH YOU ARE DROWNING.
Let me throw you a Rope of Salvation
before the Sharks of Desire gobble you up.
Let me hoist you back up onto this Ship of Fools so that we might continue our search for the Fountain of Youth. Here, take a drink of this. It's fresh from the River of Forgetfulness."
But of course I didn't say any of that.
I tried to explain in such a way as to protect her from humiliation, tried to explain that poets
often speak of things that don't exist.
It was only much later that I wished
I could have answered differently, only after I'd betrayed myself and been betrayed that I wished it was true, wished there really was a Sea of Faith that you could wade out into,
dive under its blue and magic waters,
hold your breath, swim like a fish down to the bottom, and then emerge again able to believe in everything, faithful and unafraid to ask even the simplest of questions, happy to have them simply answered.

Part 4: Tie-Breaking Essay

These notes are not intended to be understood as a key for the Tie-Breaking Essay prompt; rather, they should serve the judge(s) as a presentation of critical ideas that might appear in an essay responding to the prompt.

Criteria for judging the Tie-Breaking Essay SHOULD include the degree to which the instructions have been followed, the quality of the critical insight offered in response to the selection, the overall effectiveness of the written discussion, and the grammatical correctness of the essay.

Note well that the quality of the contestant's critical insight is more important than the contestant's prose style. In short, the Literary Criticism contest is one that promotes the critical analysis of literature. The quality of the writing, which should never go unappreciated, does not trump evidence of critical analysis.

Critical Notes on John Brehm's "Sea of Faith"

Literary concepts that MIGHT be used by the contestant in a discussion of the tone of Brehm's "Sea of Faith" include allusion,

conceit,
figures of speech,
interior monologue,
irony,
metaphor,
parenthesis,
parody,
pun,
sarcasm, simile, and
tone (wide range of tone words and phrases).

Brehm's "Sea of Faith" should elicit a wide range of responses, thus the contestant's ability to handle, not the subtle necessarily, but the distinct range of tone within the poem itself should determine the quality of the essay response to the prompt.

The contestant might choose to dwell on the sequence of allusions that charges the deep sarcasm of the teacher's interior monologue, which is framed, first, by a nod to his pleasant initial response to the student's confusion, a response in which he luxuriates in the possibilities of the teachable moment and, last, by the careful self-recriminating self-appraisal that finds the teacher in a world characterized by doubt as deep as the student's own confusion.

The contestant, knowing Matthew Arnold's "Dover Beach," might simply recognize in the teacher's own doubt the doubt admitted by Arnold's persona in the original of which Brehm's "Sea of Faith" is a species of parody.

The empathetic, maybe anecdotal response, should not be met with disdain; the situation—setting and "characters"—comprising the poem's storyline might well serve as resonance to the contestant's own youthful first steps into literary criticism. Additionally, the contestant, fancying herself or himself in front of the classroom someday might see something in the way of a cautionary tale: a witty reminder that we can unwittingly turn a young mind away from the pursuit of something that even we are yet pursuing.
