    B) Cecily and Bracknell.
    C) Chasuble and Prism.
    D) Gwendolen and Cecily.
    E) Prism and Chasuble.

33. Miss Prism's admonition, "Do not speak slightingly of the three-volume novel, Cecily. I wrote one myself in earlier days," serves as
    A) epanalepsis.
    B) metalepsis.
    C) paralepsis.
    D) prolepsis.
    E) syllepsis.

34. "The story of your romantic origin [. . .] has naturally stirred the deeper fibers of my nature" sets the tone of
    A) Algy's explanation to Jack.
    B) Bracknell's explanation to Jack.
    C) Cecily's explanation to Jack.
    D) Chasuble's explanation to Jack.
    E) Gwendolen's explanation to Jack.

35. The connection between moral character and physical appearance, "The two weak points in our age are its want of principle and its want of profile," is made by
    A) Algy.
    B) Bracknell.
    C) Chasuble.
    D) Jack.
    E) Lane.

36. "[W]ho has the right to cast a stone against one who has suffered? Cannot repentance wipe out an act of folly? Why should there be one law for men, and another for women?" is a series of rhetorical questions delivered by
    A) Augusta Bracknell.
    B) Canon Chasuble.
    C) Algernon Moncrieff.
    D) Laetitia Prism.
    E) John Worthing.

37. The pertinent insight offered by McCullers's narrator, "All of his life he knew that there was a reason for his working. He always knew that he was meant to teach his people," characterizes
    A) Biff Brannon.
    B) Jake Blount.
    C) Benedict Copeland.
    D) Harry Minowitz.
    E) Charles Parker.

38. Blount says, "[I]f you was to ask me to point out the most uncivilized area on the face of this globe I would point here," while pointing to (the)
    A) American South.
    B) American West.
    C) Mussolini's Italy.
    D) Nazi Germany.
    E) Soviet Union.

    A) Biff.
    B) Blount.
    C) Copeland.
    D) Mick.
    E) Singer.

40. The limited omniscience of the narrator's "part of him that sometimes almost wished he was a mother and that Mick and Baby were his kids" describes
    A) Antonapoulos.
    B) Biff.
    C) Blount.
    D) Copeland.
    E) Singer.

41. The chronicling and puzzling through the events of the year encompassing the novel's many and varied relationships is accomplished primarily through the eyes and reflections of

A) Jake Blount.
B) Biff Brannon.
C) Benedict Copeland.
D) Mick Kelly.
E) John Singer.

42. "If [Mick] ever heard the symphony again there would be other parts to add to what was already in her mind. And maybe if she could hear it four more times, just four more times, she would know it all." The symphony is

A) Bach's.
B) Beethoven's.
C) Chopin's.
D) Mozart's.
E) Stravinsky's.

Items 43-44 refer to Samuel Taylor Coleridge's

Metrical Feet: Lesson for a Boy

Trochee trips from long to short;
From long to long in solemn sort
Slow Spondee stalks, strong foot! yet ill able Ever to come up with Dactyl's trisyllable.
Iambics march from short to long.
With a leap and a bound the swift Anapests throng.
One syllable long, with one short at each side,
Amphibrachys hastes with a stately stride—
First and last being long, middle short, Amphimacer
Strikes his thundering hoofs like a proud high-bred Racer.
If Derwent be innocent, steady, and wise,
And delight in the things of earth, water, and skies;
Tender warmth at his heart, with these meters to show it,
With sound sense in his brains, may make Derwent a poet—
May crown him with fame, and must win him the love
Of his father on earth and his father above.
My dear, dear child!
Could you stand upon Skiddaw, you would not from its whole ridge
See a man who so loves you as your fond S. T. COLERIDGE.

43. Lines 9 and 10 of Coleridge's "Metrical Feet" exhibit a fairly rare type of rhyme in which one word is forced into a rhyme with two or more words, a melopoetic device that is known as

A) compound rhyme.

B) ∪ ∪ / .
C) ∪ / ∪ .
D) ∪ / / .
E) / / ∪ .

Items 45-48 refer to Samuel Taylor Coleridge's

The Eolian Harp
(excerpted)

My pensive Sara! thy soft cheek reclined
Thus on mine arm, most soothing sweet it is
To sit beside our Cot, our Cot o'ergrown
With white-flowered Jasmin, and the broad-leaved Myrtle,
(Meet emblems they of Innocence and Love!)
And watch the clouds, that late were rich with light,
Slow saddening round, and mark the star of eve
Serenely brilliant (such would Wisdom be)
Shine opposite! How exquisite the scents
Snatched from yon bean-field! and the world so hushed!
The stilly murmur of the distant Sea
Tells us of silence.

And that simplest Lute,
Placed length-ways in the clasping casement, hark!
How by the desultory breeze caressed,
Like some coy maid half yielding to her lover,
It pours such sweet upbraiding, as must needs
Tempt to repeat the wrong! And now, its strings
Boldlier swept, the long sequacious notes
Over delicious surges sink and rise,
Such a soft floating witchery of sound
As twilight Elfins make, when they at eve
Voyage on gentle gales from Fairy-Land,
Where Melodies round honey-dropping flowers,
Footless and wild, like birds of Paradise,
Nor pause, nor perch, hovering on untamed wing!
O! the one Life within us and abroad,
Which meets all motion and becomes its soul,

A light in sound, a sound-like power in light,
Rhythm in all thought, and joyance everywhere—
Methinks, it should have been impossible
Not to love all things in a world so filled;
Where the breeze warbles, and the mute still air
Is Music slumbering on her instrument.
[. . . . . .]
And what if all of animated nature
Be but organic Harps diversely framed,
That tremble into thought, as o'er them sweeps
Plastic and vast, one intellectual breeze,
At once the Soul of each, and God of all?

But thy more serious eye a mild reproof
Darts, O beloved Woman! nor such thoughts
Dim and unhallowed dost thou not reject,
And biddest me walk humbly with my God.
Meek Daughter in the family of Christ!
Well hast thou said and holily dispraised
These shapings of the unregenerate mind;
Bubbles that glitter as they rise and break
On vain Philosophy's aye-babbling spring.
For never guiltless may I speak of him,
The Incomprehensible! save when with awe
I praise him, and with Faith that inly feels;
Who with his saving mercies healèd me,
A sinful and most miserable man,
Wildered and dark, and gave me to possess
Peace, and this Cot, and thee, heart-honored Maid!

45. The prevailing trope in STC's "Eolian Harp" is the
A) allusion.
B) hyperbole.
C) metaphor.
D) oxymoron.
E) simile.

46. The simile driving lines 15-17 is complemented by the phrase "sweet upbraiding," which is
A) allusive.
B) hyperbolic.
C) metonymic.
D) oxymoronic.
E) syllogistic.

47. The concurrence of sensations in line 29's chiasmic "light in sound, a sound-like power in light" is called (a)
A) chiasmus.
B) heterostrophic.
C) paradox.
D) synæsthesia.
E) transumption.

48. The speaker in Coleridge's conversation poem chronicles his rejection of
A) Christianity.
B) musicology.
C) pantheism.
D) philosophy.
E) things esemplastic.

Items 49-50 refer to Samuel Taylor Coleridge's

Work without Hope

All Nature seems at work. Slugs leave their lair—
The bees are stirring—birds are on the wing—
And Winter slumbering in the open air,
Wears on his smiling face a dream of Spring!
And I the while, the sole unbusy thing,
Nor honey make, nor pair, nor build, nor sing.

Yet well I ken the banks where amaranths blow,
Have traced the fount whence streams of nectar flow.
Bloom, O ye amaranths! bloom for whom ye may,
For me ye bloom not! Glide, rich streams, away!
With lips unbrightened, wreathless brow, I stroll:
And would you learn the spells that drowse my soul?
Work without Hope draws nectar in a sieve,
And Hope without an object cannot live.

49. The significance of Coleridge's use of "amaranths" in "Work without Hope" is that they symbolize (the)
A) busy-ness in nature.
B) loss of all but one vowel.
C) spells that seduce the speaker into indolence.
D) unfading beauty.
E) wreathless brow of the strolling speaker.

50. The focus of and therefore thematic to Coleridge's poem is the concern about the
A) ability to work without disturbing nature.
B) busy-ness in nature.
C) change from winter to spring.
D) poet's lack of critical acclaim.
E) poet's separation from nature.

Part 3: Ability in Literary Criticism
15 items (2 points each)

Items 51-54 refer to Alexander Pope's

Winter
(excerpted)

Alexander Pope's

Winter

[A Conversation between Lycidas and Thyrsis]

Lycidas.

How all things listen, while thy Muse complains!
Such silence waits on Philomela's strains,
In some still ev'ning, when the whisp'ring breeze
Pants on the leaves, and dies upon the trees.
To thee, bright goddess, oft a lamb shall bleed,
If teeming ewes increase my fleecy breed.
While plants their shade, or flow'rs their odours give,
Thy name, thy honour, and thy praise shall live!

Thyrsis.

But see, Orion sheds unwholesome dews,
Arise, the pines a noxious shade diffuse;
Sharp Boreas blows, and Nature feels decay,
Time conquers all, and we must Time obey.
Adieu, ye vales, ye mountains, streams and groves,
Adieu, ye shepherd's rural lays and loves;
Adieu, my flocks, farewell ye sylvan crew,
Daphne, farewell, and all the world adieu!

51. The deliberate repetition of beginning words and phrases as found in 89-91 of Alexander Pope's "Winter" is known as

A) anadiplosis.
B) anaphora.
C) asyndeton.
D) ploce.

A) comedy.
B) irony.
C) pastoral.
D) satire.
E) tragedy.

Items 55-57 refer to Wilfrid Wilson Gibson's

Back

They ask me where I've been,
And what I've done and seen.
But what can I reply
Who know it wasn't I,
But someone just like me,
Who went across the sea
And with my head and hands
Killed men in foreign lands . . .
Though I must bear the blame
Because he bore my name.

55. The transposition of the normal syntactic arrangement of lines 3 and 4 of Wilfrid Wilson Gibson's "Back" is called

A) analogue.
B) hyperbaton.
C) metathesis.
D) parenthesis.

A) blame must be assigned.
B) foreign wars can divide brothers.
C) killing is a conscious endeavor.
D) twin brothers can be differentiated by war.
E) war changes a person irrevocably.

Items 58-62 refer to Sir Philip Sidney's

Astrophil and Stella
Sonnet VII

When Nature made her chief work, Stella's eyes,
In color black why wrapped she beams so bright?
Would she in beamy black, like painter wise,
Frame daintiest luster mixed of shades and light?
Or did she else that sober hue devise
In object best to knit and strength our sight,
Lest, if no veil these brave gleams did disguise,
They, sunlike, should more dazzle than delight?
Or would she her miraculous power show,
That, whereas black seems beauty's contrary,
She even in black doth make all beauties flow?
Both so, and thus,—she, minding Love should be Placed ever there, gave him this mourning weed
To honor all their deaths who for her bleed.

58. Line 10 of Sidney's Sonnet VII, which addresses the color black as "beauty's contrary," features a
A) hyperbole.
B) litotes.
C) locus classicus.
D) oxymoron.
E) paradox.

59. Arguably, the sonnet, especially the opening line, compliments the beauty of Stella's eyes in imagery and comparisons using
A) allusion.
B) hyperbole.
C) irony.
D) metaphors.
E) synecdoche.

60. The comparison in lines 7 and 8 relies on a(n)
A) analogue.

D) line 12.
E) line 13.

62. The sonnet is comprised of a series of
A) auditory images.
B) Elizabethan metaphors.
C) Petrarchan conceits.
D) rhetorical questions.
E) quatrains.

Items 63-65 refer to Sharon Olds's

My Son the Man

Suddenly his shoulders get a lot wider,
the way Houdini* would expand his body while people were putting him in chains. It seems no time since I would help him to put on his sleeper, guide his calves into the gold interior, zip him up and toss him up and catch his weight. I cannot imagine him no longer a child, and I know I must get ready, get over my fear of men now my son is going to be one. This was not what I had in mind when he pressed up through like a sealed trunk through the ice of the Hudson, snapped the padlock, unsnaked the chains, and appeared in my arms. Now he looks at me the way Houdini studied a box to learn the way out, then smiled and let himself be manacled.

*famous escape artist

63. Olds's "My Son the Man" is solidly based on a(n)
A) allusion.
B) cliché.
C) paradox.

B) dressed for bed.
C) embraced.
D) kissed.
E) tied with an apron string.

The required tie-breaking essay prompt is found on the next page.

Part 4: Tie-Breaking Essay (required)

Note well: Contestants who do not write an essay will be disqualified even if they are not involved in any tie.

Note well: Any essay that does not demonstrate a sincere effort to discuss the assigned topic will be disqualified. The judge(s) should note carefully this criterion when breaking ties: ranking of essays for tie-breaking purposes should be based primarily on how well the topic has been addressed.

Three sheets of paper have been provided for this essay; your written response should reflect the Handbook's notion that an essay is a "moderately brief discussion of a restricted topic": something more than just a few sentences.

Having spent the better part of a year with Samuel Taylor Coleridge's poetry, consider Jan Owen's "First Love" in terms of beauty's ability to influence poets.

First Love

Titian's Young Englishman with a Glove, circa 1530

It happened in Physics,
reading a Library art book under the desk,
(the lesson was Archimedes in the bath)
I turned a page and fell for an older man, and anonymous at that, hardly ideal—
he was four hundred and forty-five,
I was fourteen.
'Eureka!' streaked each thought (I prayed no-one would hear) and Paradise all term was page 179
(I prayed no-one would guess).
Of course
my fingers, sticky with toffee and bliss, failed to entice him from his century;
his cool grey stare
fastened me firmly in mine.
I got six overdues,
suspension of borrowing rights
and a D in Physics.
But had by heart what Archimedes proves.
Ten years later I married:
a European with cool grey eyes,
a moustache,
pigskin gloves.

Part 4: Tie-Breaking Essay

These notes are not intended to be understood as a key for the Tie-Breaking Essay prompt; rather, they should serve the judge(s) as a presentation of critical ideas that might appear in an essay responding to the prompt.

Criteria for judging the Tie-Breaking Essay SHOULD include the degree to which the instructions have been followed, the quality of the critical insight offered in response to the selection, the overall effectiveness of the written discussion, and the grammatical correctness of the essay.

Note well that the quality of the contestant's critical insight is more important than the contestant's prose style. In short, the Literary Criticism contest is one that promotes the critical analysis of literature. The quality of the writing, which should never go unappreciated, does not trump evidence of critical analysis.

Critical Notes on John

Literary concepts that MIGHT be used in a discussion of Owens's poem include allusion,

consonance,
free verse,
metonymy,
muse,
parenthesis,
pun,
speaker,
symbol,
tactile imagery,
tone,
visual imagery, and zeugma.

The contestant should find, in Owens's recounting of her adolescent crush, evidence that idealized physical beauty has the power to inspire. The approach might be subjective, or it might be a more generalized assessment of the role that art—graphic, plastic, literary, or indeed cinematic—plays in the development of a person's appreciation of beauty—and by extension a person's development as a writer, specifically as a poet.

Any referencing of Samuel Taylor Coleridge's poetry as homage to Nature's ability to inspire the poet is welcomed and should be recognized as a response to the prompt.
