Part 2: The UIL Reading List 20 items (2 points each)

Items 31-35 are associated with Molière's Tartuffe, or The Impostor.
Items 36-40 are associated with Cormac McCarthy's All the Pretty Horses.
Items 41-50 are associated with Robert Browning's poetry (selected).

31. In Tartuffe the seriousness of Madame Pernelle's allusion, "It is really the Tower of Babylon, / For all the people there just babble on," is amusingly undercut by
    A) broken rhyme.
    B) heteromerous rhyme.
    C) hyperbole.
    D) jumping the shark.
    E) litotes.

32. Orgon's declaring that Tartuffe takes "[g]reat interest in my wife, all for my sake; / He warns me when men ogle her on the sly, / And acts far jealouser of her than I," is an embarrassingly clear example of
    A) hyperbole.
    B) irony.
    C) jeremiad.
    D) piety.
    E) systrophe.

33. "[N]o man would marry me / Against my will and with impunity. / Soon after, I would make him understand / That women have their vengeance close at hand" is a hypothetical threat offered by
    A) Cléante.
    B) Dorine.
    C) Elmire.
    D) Laurent.
    E) Mariane.

34. Elmire's bargaining with Tartuffe to "[g]ive up [his] own inequitable plan / To take a girl pledged to another man," is interrupted by
    A) Damis.
    B) Dorine.
    C) Flipote.
    D) Orgon.
    E) Valère.

35. The strongest admonitory rebuff Dorine receives, "You could get into trouble, with your jaw, / My girl; women are not above the law," is delivered by
    A) Cléante.
    B) Elmire.
    C) Monsieur Loyal.
    D) Orgon.
    E) Tartuffe.

    A) Civil War.
    B) Korean War.
    C) Spanish-American War.
    D) World War I.
    E) World War II.

Items 41-44 refer to Robert Browning's

Love among the Ruins

Where the quiet-coloured end of evening smiles,
Miles and miles
On the solitary pastures where our sheep
Half-asleep
Tinkle homeward thro' the twilight, stray or stop
As they crop—
Was the site once of a city great and gay,
(So they say)
Of our country's very capital, its prince
Ages since
Held his court in, gathered councils, wielding far
Peace or war.

Now the country does not even boast a tree,
As you see,
To distinguish slopes of verdure, certain rills
From the hills
Intersect and give a name to, (else they run Into one)
Where the domed and daring palace shot its spires
Up like fires
O'er the hundred-gated circuit of a wall
Bounding all
Made of marble, men might march on nor be pressed
Twelve abreast.

And such plenty and perfection, see, of grass
Never was!
Such a carpet as, this summer-time, o'er-spreads
And embeds
Every vestige of the city, guessed alone,
Stock or stone—
Where a multitude of men breathed joy and woe
Long ago;
Lust of glory pricked their hearts up, dread of shame
Struck them tame;
And that glory and that shame alike, the gold
Bought and sold.

Now—the single little turret that remains
On the plains,
By the caper overrooted, by the gourd
Overscored,
While the patching houseleek's head of blossom winks
Through the chinks—
Marks the basement whence a tower in ancient time
Sprang sublime,
And a burning ring, all round, the chariots traced
As they raced,
And the monarch and his minions and his dames
Viewed the games.

And I know, while thus the quiet-coloured eve
Smiles to leave
To their folding, all our many-tinkling fleece
In such peace,
And the slopes and rills in undistinguished grey Melt away—
That a girl with eager eyes and yellow hair
Waits me there
In the turret whence the charioteers caught soul
For the goal,
When the king looked, where she looks now, breathless, dumb
Till I come.

But he looked upon the city, every side,
Far and wide,
All the mountains topped with temples, all the glades'
Colonnades,
All the causeys, bridges, aqueducts,—and then
All the men!
When I do come, she will speak not, she will stand,
Either hand
On my shoulder, give her eyes the first embrace
Of my face,
Ere we rush, ere we extinguish sight and speech
Each on each.

In one year they sent a million fighters forth
South and North,
And they built their gods a brazen pillar high
As the sky
Yet reserved a thousand chariots in full force—
Gold, of course.
O heart! oh blood that freezes, blood that burns!
Earth's returns
For whole centuries of folly, noise and sin!
Shut them in,
With their triumphs and their glories and the rest!
Love is best.

41. In Browning's pastoral "Love among the Ruins" the combining of "tinkling" (first appearing in line 5) with "fleece" in line 51, in which onomatopoeia, synæsthesia, and synecdoche combine with extreme compression so that the literal statement is lost in the total effect of "Our many-tinkling fleece / In such peace," is an instance of

A) antithesis.
B) heaping figure.
C) metalepsis.
D) metaphysical conceit.
E) zeugma.

42. The imagery upon which the persona's description of the ruins depends, indeed, dwells and the relatively brief description of the girl with "eager eyes and yellow hair" (line 55) drive a philosophical difference that is found answered in

A) lines 31-32.
B) lines 59-60.
C) lines 71-72.
D) line 79.
E) line 84.

43. The diction of, especially, line 79, "whole centuries of folly, noise and sin" suggests the persona's disdain for

A) arcadian revelries.
B) bucolic festivities.
C) city building.
D) destructive empire building.
E) enthusiasiam in general.

44. The strongest aspect of Browning's presenting to the reader the empirical evidence that love can persist even in the existential presence of the memory of war-making is the poem's

A) episodic structure.
B) meter.
C) rhyme scheme.
D) setting.
E) tone.

Items 45-50 refer to Robert Browning's

"Childe Roland to the Dark Tower came"
(excerpted)

XXVII

And just as far as ever from the end!
  Naught in the distance but the evening, naught
  To point my footstep further! At the thought,
A great black bird, Apollyon's bosom-friend,
Sailed past, nor beat his wide wing dragon-penned
  That brushed my cap—perchance the guide I sought.

XXVIII

For, looking up, aware I somehow grew,
  'Spite of the dusk, the plain had given place
  All round to mountains—with such name to grace
Mere ugly heights and heaps now stolen in view.
How thus they had surprised me,—solve it, you!
  How to get from them was no clearer case.

XXIX

Yet half I seemed to recognize some trick
  Of mischief happened to me, God knows when—
  In a bad dream perhaps. Here ended, then,
Progress this way. When, in the very nick
Of giving up, one time more, came a click
  As when a trap shuts—you're inside the den!

XXX

Burningly it came on me all at once,
  This was the place! those two hills on the right,
  Crouched like two bulls locked horn in horn in fight;
While to the left, a tall scalped mountain . . . Dunce,
Dotard, a-dozing at the very nonce,
  After a life spent training for the sight!

XXXI

What in the midst lay but the Tower itself?
  The round squat turret, blind as the fool's heart,
  Built of brown stone, without a counter-part
In the whole world. The tempest's mocking elf
Points to the shipman thus the unseen shelf
  He strikes on, only when the timbers start.

XXXII

Not see? because of night perhaps?—why, day
  Came back again for that! before it left,
  The dying sunset kindled through a cleft:
The hills, like giants at a hunting, lay,
Chin upon hand, to see the game at bay,—
  "Now stab and end the creature---to the heft!"

XXXIII

Not hear? when noise was everywhere! it tolled
  Increasing like a bell. Names in my ears
  Of all the lost adventurers my peers,—
How such a one was strong, and such was bold,
And such was fortunate, yet, each of old
  Lost, lost! one moment knelled the woe of years.

XXXIV

There they stood, ranged along the hill-sides, met
  To view the last of me, a living frame
  For one more picture! in a sheet of flame
I saw them and I knew them all. And yet
Dauntless the slug-horn to my lips I set,
  And blew. "Childe Roland to the Dark Tower came."

45. The title of Robert Browning's "Childe Roland to the Dark Tower came" is a(n)

A) allusion to a Stephen King novel.
B) allusion to a William Shakespeare play.
C) line from a children's song.
D) phrase that Elizabeth Barrett gave Browning.
E) title of a medieval chanson de geste.

46. Apollyon, described as the "bosom-friend" of the "great black bird" (line 160) is a(n)

A) angel.
B) buzzard.
C) crow.
D) harpy.
E) vulture.

47. The term "slug-horn" suggests the quest's historical setting to be

A) antediluvian.
B) hellish.
C) medieval.
D) pseudopodial.
E) romantic.

48. Stanzas XXIX through XXXIII depend, in their descriptions, on

A) anaphora.
B) hyperbole.
C) metaphors.
D) similes.
E) sfumato.

49. Missing from the catalog of expected characteristics of the typical quest is/are the

A) antagonist.
B) goal.
C) obstacles.
D) physical exertion.
E) search for self-knowledge.

50. The reference to "the lost adventurers my peers" (line 195) suggests a contemporary evaluation regarding the

A) Dark Tower's unapproachableness.
B) difficulty of traversing wastelands.
C) lack of GPS technology.
D) meaninglessness of life.
E) overconfidence of medieval jousters.

Part 3: Ability in Literary Criticism
15 items (2 points each)

Items 51-55 refer to David Wojahn's

"It's Only Rock and Roll, but I Like It": The Fall of Saigon

The guttural stammer of the chopper blades
Raising arabesques of dust, tearing leaves
From the orange trees lining the Embassy compound;
One chopper left, and a CBS cameraman leans
From inside its door, exploiting the artful
Mayhem. Somewhere a radio blares the Stones,*
"I like it, like it, yes indeed. . . ." Carts full
Of files blaze in the yard. Flak-jacketed marines Gunpoint the crowd away. The overloaded chopper strains
And blunders from the roof. An ice-cream-suited Saigonese drops his briefcase; both hands
Now cling to the airborne skis. The camera gets
It all: the marine leaning out the copter bay,
His fists beating time. Then the hands giving way.

* the rock and roll band Rolling Stones
 government documents
 helicopter

51. The form of David Wojahn's "'It's Only Rock and Roll'" is the

A) curtal sonnet.
B) fourteener.

52. The "blades / Raising arabesques of dust, tearing leaves / From the orange trees" (lines 1-3) contrast

A) beauty with destruction.
B) dust with trees.
C) mayhem with flak.
D) nature with cityscape.
E) rock and roll with Arabian music.

53. The full effect of the first line of Wojahn's poem, "The guttural stammer of the chopper blades" relies heavily on

A) euphemism.
B) euphony.
C) hyperbole.
D) onomatopoeia.
E) xenoglossia.

54. The "mayhem" (line 6) finds resolution, ironically, in the constancy offered in the visual imagery of

A) line 10.
B) line 11.
C) line 12.
D) line 13.
E) line 14.

55. Additional resolution is achieved by the progression, especially as it appears in the last lines, of the poem's

A) luminalism.
B) mirlitonade.
C) narrative hook.
D) polyhyphenation.
E) rhyme scheme.

Items 56-59 refer to Edna St. Vincent Millay's

Travel

The railroad track is miles away,
And the day is loud with voices speaking,
Yet there isn't a train goes by all day
But I hear its whistle shrieking.

All night there isn't a train goes by,
Though the night is still for sleep and dreaming,
But I see its cinders red on the sky,
And hear its engine steaming.

My heart is warm with friends I make,
And better friends I'll not be knowing;
Yet there isn't a train I wouldn't take,
No matter where it's going.

56. The second and fourth line of each of the stanzas in Edna St. Vincent Millay's "Travel" exhibit

A) beginning rhyme.
B) compound rhyme.
C) feminine rhyme.
D) leonine rhyme.
E) masculine rhyme.

57. The trains heard and seen at a distance (lines1-8) and the trains that the persona would not fail to take (line 11) represent the

A) dreaming and the waking.
B) friendly and the unfriendly.
C) known and the unknown.
D) soul and the body.
E) visual and the auditory.

58. The trope at work in line 2, "And the day is loud with voices speaking," is

A) hyperbole.
B) metaphor.
C) personification.
D) simile.
E) synecdoche.

59. The distance between where the persona lives and where the railroad tracks with which she is familiar are located is reinforced by

A) auditory and olfactory imagery.
B) gustatory and tactile imagery.
C) kinesthetic imagery.
D) tactile imagery.
E) visual and auditory imagery.

Items 60-65 refer to John Updike's

Perfection Wasted

And another regrettable thing about death is the ceasing of your own brand of magic, which took a whole life to develop and market—
the quips, the witticisms, the slant adjusted to a few, those loved ones nearest the lip of the stage, their soft faces blanched in the footlight glow, their laughter close to tears, their tears confused with their diamond earrings,
their warm pooled breath in and out with your heartbeat,
their response and your performance twinned.
The jokes over the phone. The memories packed in the rapid-access file. The whole act.
Who will do it again? That's it: no one;
imitators and descendants aren't the same.

60. The controlling image of Updike's "Perfection Wasted" is especially apparent in the clichéd

A) all the world's a stage.
B) birds of a feather flock together.
C) good things come to those who wait.
D) whatever doesn't kill you makes you stronger.
E) you have to break a few eggs to make an omelet.

61. The focus of John Updike's sonnet is the importance of

A) asides and soliloquies.
B) magic as entertainment.
C) memories uploaded on social media sites.
D) meaningful friendships.
E) tears and earrings.

62. In declaring an awareness of the unique individual as important, the philosophical point of departure that the speaker's musings represent is

A) epicureanism.
B) existentialism.
C) historicism.
D) humanism.
E) stoicism.

63. The repetition found at the beginning of lines 8-10 is an instance of

A) anaphora.
B) asyndeton.
C) epanalepsis.
D) pleonasm.
E) symploce.

64. The speaker's opening his contemplation not at the beginning of his thoughts, as though the concern at hand has been troubling him for some time is an occurrence of

A) carpe diem.
B) fin de siècle.
C) in medias res.
D) jeu d'espirit.
E) ubi sunt.

65. Lines 7-8, "in the footlight glow, their laughter close to tears, / their tears confused with their diamond earrings," exhibit a reversed patterned balance termed

A) asyndeton.
B) chiasmus.
C) parallelism.
D) pyramidal line.
E) rhopalic line.

Part 4: Tie-Breaking Essay (required)

Note well: Contestants who do not write an essay will be disqualified even if they are not involved in any tie.

Note well: Any essay that does not demonstrate a sincere effort to discuss the assigned topic will be disqualified. The judge(s) should note carefully this criterion when breaking ties: ranking of essays for tie-breaking purposes should be based primarily on how well the topic has been addressed.

Three sheets of paper have been provided for this essay; your written response should reflect the Handbook's notion that an essay is a "moderately brief discussion of a restricted topic": something more than just a few sentences.

Read Martín Espada's "Bully," and offer a discussion of the poem's layers of irony, beginning with the poem's title-as-pun and focusing especially on the concept invasion.

Bully*
Boston, Massachusetts, 1987

In the school auditorium,
the Theodore Roosevelt statue is nostalgic
for the Spanish-American war,
each fist lonely for a saber,
or the reins of anguish-eyed horses,
or a podium to clatter with speeches
glorying in the malaria of conquest.

But now the Roosevelt school is pronounced Hernández.
Puerto Rico has invaded Roosevelt with its army of Spanish-singing children in the hallways,
brown children devouring
the stockpiles of the cafeteria, children painting *Taíno ancestors that leap naked across murals.

Roosevelt is surrounded by all the faces
he ever shoved in eugenic* spite and cursed as mongrels, skin of one race, hair and cheekbones of another.

Once Marines tramped
from the newsreel of his imagination;
now children plot to spray graffiti in parrot-brilliant colors across the Victorian mustache and monocle.

Part 4: Tie-Breaking Essay

These notes are not intended to be understood as a key for the Tie-Breaking Essay prompt; rather, they should serve the judge(s) as a presentation of critical ideas that might appear in an essay responding to the prompt.

Criteria for judging the Tie-Breaking Essay SHOULD include the degree to which the instructions have been followed, the quality of the critical insight offered in response to the selection, the overall effectiveness of the written discussion, and the grammatical correctness of the essay.

Note well that the quality of the contestant's critical insight is more important than the contestant's prose style. In short, the Literary Criticism contest is one that promotes the critical analysis of literature. The quality of the writing, which should never go unappreciated, does not trump evidence of critical analysis.
