E) Lemon's remains.

Items 43-48 refer to Robert Frost's

Choose Something Like a Star

O Star (the fairest one in sight),
We grant your loftiness the right
To some obscurity of cloud—
I will not do to say of night,
Since dark is what brings out your light.
Some mystery becomes the proud.
But to the wholly taciturn
In your reserve is not allowed.
Say something to us we can learn
By heart and when alone repeat.
Say something! And it says, "I burn."
But say with what degree of heat.
Talk Fahrenheit, talk Centigrade.
Use language we can comprehend.
Tell us what elements you blend.
It gives us strangely little aid,
But does tell something in the end.
And steadfast as Keats' Eremite,
Not even stooping from its sphere,
It asks a little of us here.
It asks of us a certain height,
So when at times the mob is swayed
To carry praise or blame too far,
We may choose something like a star
To stay our minds on and be staid.

43. The speaker's addressing the Star throughout Frost's "Choose Something Like a Star" constitutes

A) apostrophe.
B) epiphany.
C) mimesis.
D) personification.
E) reification.

44. Overwhelmingly, the metrical pattern of Frost's poem is

A) anapestic hexameter.
B) dactylic pentameter.
C) dactylic tetrameter.
D) iambic pentameter.
E) iambic tetrameter.

45. The use of the word becomes (line 6) strongly implies that the poem's speaker

A) accepts the Star's right to obscurity.
B) appreciates the Star's fairness.
C) recognizes the mystery: light-years mean distance.
D) remembers that stars are taciturn.
E) understands the paradox of dark being light.

46. Line 18 features both a

A) kenning and an allusion.
B) metaphor and a conceit.
C) simile and a confusing diction choice.
D) simile and a literary allusion.
E) simile and a topical allusion.

47. The use of two words having the same root, as occurs in final line's stay and staid, is called

A) asyndeton.
B) pleonasm.
C) polyptopon.
D) polysyndeton.
E) tautology.

48. The theme of Frost's poem might be understood as offering

A) options for manned exploration of outer space.
B) positive proof that astrology has merit.
C) questions that the cosmos cannot answer.
D) reassurance that mankind is not alone.
E) scientific facts that trump poetic sentiment.

Items 49-50 refer to Robert Frost's

To the Thawing Wind

Come with rain, O loud Southwester!
Bring the singer, bring the nester;
Give the buried flower a dream;
Make the settled snowbank steam;
Find the brown beneath the white;
But whate'er you do tonight,
Bathe my window, make it flow,
Melt it as the ice will go;
Melt the glass and leave the sticks
Like a hermit's crucifix;
Burst into my narrow stall;
Swing the picture on the wall;
Run the rattling pages o'er;
Scatter poems on the floor;
Turn the poet out of door.

49. The word nester in the second line of Frost's "To the Thawing Wind" is a reference to (a)

A) birds.
B) character in Homer's Iliad.
C) child who has not left home yet.
D) matryoshka, a Russian stackable doll.
E) someone who leaves a ring of tissue on a toilet seat.

50. The omission of part of a word, often to accommodate meter, as found in lines 6 and 13, whate'er and o'er, is

A) caesura.
B) elision.
C) epanalepsis.
D) hiatus.
E) metathesis.

Part 3: Ability in Literary Criticism
15 items (2 points each)

Items 51-54 refer to John Crowe Ransom's

Winter Remembered

Two evils, monstrous either one apart,
Possessed me, and were long and loath at going:
A cry of Absence, Absence, in the heart,
And in the wood the furious winter blowing.

Think not, when fire was bright upon my bricks,
And past the tight boards hardly a wind could enter,
I glowed like them, the simple burning sticks,
Far from my cause, my proper heat and center.
Better to walk forth in the frozen air
And wash my wound in the snows; that would be healing;
Because my heart would throb less painful there,
Being caked with cold, and past the smart of feeling.

And where I walked, the murderous winter blast
Would have this body bowed, these eyeballs streaming,
And though I think this heart's blood froze not fast
It ran too small to spare one drop for dreaming.

Dear love, these fingers that had known your touch,
And tied our separate forces first together,
Were ten poor idiot fingers not worth much,
Ten frozen parsnips hanging in the weather.

51. The foundational metrical pattern of Ransom's "Winter Remembered" is

A) anapestic pentameter.
B) iambic pentameter.
C) iambic tetrameter.
D) trochaic pentameter.

54. The tone of Ransom's "Wintered Remembered" is

A) demonically Manichæan.
B) fretfully morose.
C) gleefully mundane.
D) maniacally fretful.
E) sorrowfully forlorn.

Items 55-60 refer to Susan Wicks's

On Re-recording Mozart

When the throb of her voice was cut off, I drove through streets white with silence: no sound but my own engine, as if above or beyond the gear-change a knife glittered, and love itself were cut out its high vibrating tongue docked with a neat flick as the full reel still turned, clicking, lashing its little tail at nothing, and silence became her whole song.

Now I have re-recorded Mozart, my tape unwinding across chasms. Between one note and the next she still breathes. Her breath pulls me across the darkness, the last escape of bodies. Rising from her new throat it redeems and redeems us. I have erased death.

55. Susan Wicks's "On Re-recording Mozart" is essentially a poem

A) appreciating classical music.
B) dealing with loss.
C) recalling the thrill of watching Adele sing in a car.
D) recounting an out-of-body experience.

A) boustrophedon.
B) end-stopped line.
C) enjambment.
D) reduplication.
E) truncation.

59. In spite of the irregularity of the rhythm of Wicks's "On Re-recording Mozart," the poem satisfies the broad parameters of a(n)

A) Anglo-Norman sonnet.
B) English sonnet.
C) Italian sonnet.
D) Miltonic sonnet.
E) Spenserian sonnet.

60. The describing of one kind of sensation in terms of another as is found in line 2's relatively overt "white with silence" and line 1's rather subtle "throb of her voice" is known as (a/an)

A) ambiguity.
B) conceit.
C) heaping figure.
D) mosaic.
E) synæsthesia.

Items 61-62 refer to Emily Dickinson's

[We like March, his shoes are purple]

We like March, his shoes are purple,
He is new and high;
Makes he mud for dog and peddler,
Makes he forest dry;
Knows the adder's tongue his coming,
And begets her spot.
Stands the sun so close and mighty
That our minds are hot.
News is he of all the others;
Bold it were to die
With the blue-birds buccaneering
On his British sky.

61. The third and fourth lines of Dickinson's "[We like March]" are characterized by

A) anaphora and internal rhyme.
B) inversion and anaphora.
C) irony and hyperbole.
D) onomatopoeia and symbolism.

D) personification and synæsthesia.
E) personification and metonymy.

Items 63-65 refer to Thomas Hardy's

How Great My Grief

How great my grief, my joys how few,
Since first it was my fate to know thee!
- Have the slow years not brought to view
How great my grief, my joys how few,
Nor memory shaped old times anew,
Nor loving-kindness helped to show thee
How great my grief, my joys how few,
Since first it was my fate to know thee?

63. The form of Thomas Hardy's eight-line "How Great My Grief" is the

A) odelet.
B) senryu.
C) tercet.
D) terza rima.
E) triolet.

64. The pattern of Hardy's first line in which the second half, "my joys how few," is balanced against the first half, "How great my grief," but with parts reversed is known as

A) chiaroscuro.
B) chiasmus.
C) chrestomathy.
D) palimpsest.
E) parallelism.

65. The last six lines of Hardy's short poem constitute a(n)

A) dialectic.
B) mixed figure.
C) objective correlative.
D) rhetorical question.
E) voice-over.

Part 4: Tie-Breaking Essay (required)

Note well: Contestants who do not write an essay will be disqualified even if they are not involved in any tie. Any essay that does not demonstrate a sincere effort to discuss the assigned topic will be disqualified. The judge(s) should note carefully this criterion when breaking ties: ranking of essays for tie-breaking purposes should be based primarily on how well the topic has been addressed.

Three sheets of paper have been provided; your written response should reflect the Handbook's notion that an essay is a "moderately brief discussion of a restricted topic": something more than just a few sentences.

Read Robert Frost's "The Investment," and use Frost's own observation that there are "two types of realists: the one who offers a good deal of dirt with his potato to show that it is a real one, and the one who is satisfied with the potato brushed clean. I'm inclined to be the second kind. To me, the thing that art does for life is to clean it, to strip it to form" in order to address the two perspectives found in "The Investment."

The Investment

Over back where they speak of life as staying ("You couldn't call it living, for it ain't"),
There was an old, old house renewed with paint,
And in it a piano loudly playing.

Out in the plowed ground in the cold a digger,
Among unearthed potatoes standing still,
Was counting winter dinners, one a hill,
With half an ear to the piano's vigor.

All that piano and new paint back there,
Was it some money suddenly come into?
Or some extravagance young love had been to?
Or old love on an impulse not to care—

Not to sink under being man and wife,
But get some color and music out of life?

Part 4: Tie-Breaking Essay

These notes are not intended to be understood as a key for the Tie-Breaking Essay prompt; rather, they should serve the judge(s) as a presentation of critical ideas that might appear in an essay responding to the prompt.

Criteria for judging the Tie-Breaking Essay SHOULD include the degree to which the instructions have been followed, the quality of the critical insight offered in response to the selection, the overall effectiveness of the written discussion, and the grammatical correctness of the essay.

Note well that the quality of the contestant's critical insight is more important than the contestant's prose style. In short, the Literary Criticism contest is one that promotes the critical analysis of literature. The quality of the writing, which should never go unappreciated, does not trump evidence of critical analysis.

Critical Notes on Robert Frost's "The Investment"

Literary concepts that MIGHT be used in a discussion of Frost's presentation of the realist who offers "a great deal of dirt with his potato" and the "one who is satisfied with the potato brushed clean" in the sonnet "The Investment" include alliteration,

assonance,
consonance,
comparison (contrast),
couplet,
envelope (insert) rhyme,
feminine rhyme,
masculine rhyme,
quatrain,
rhetorical question,
sonnet,
theme, and tone.

The young writer might immediately recognize the speaker's contrasting "staying" with "living" (lines 1-2) and might also make an immediate connection with the intention put forward in the sonnet's concluding couplet, which underscores Frost's declared preference for the "potato brushed clean."

The contestant might choose to approach the poem's thematic concern through an explication, quatrain by quatrain, the first serving as an overture, the second and third stanzas serving to delineate the two perspectives on realism, respectively.

The student might cue in on the title and the two differing investments: the potato harvesting representing an investment colored by the old, perhaps with the "staying," hardly "living"; the investment in new paint and the piano ("some color and music") representing the impulse to live beyond staying.
