Items 43-45 refer to Rudyard Kipling's

The Explanation

Love and Death once ceased their strife
At the Tavern of Man's Life.
Called for wine, and threw—alas!—
Each his quiver on the grass.
When the bout was o'er they found
Mingled arrows strewed the ground.
Hastily they gathered then
Each the loves and lives of men.
Ah, the fateful dawn deceived!
Mingled arrows each one sheaved;
Death's dread armoury was stored
With the shafts he most abhorred;
Love's light quiver groaned beneath
Venom-headed darts of Death.
Thus it was they wrought our woe
At the Tavern long ago.
Tell me, do our masters know,
Loosing blindly as they fly,
Old men love while young men die?

Items 46-47 refer to Rudyard Kipling's

[The Stream is shrunk—the pool is dry]

The stream is shrunk—the pool is dry,
And we be comrades, thou and I;
With fevered jowl and dusty flank
Each jostling each along the bank;

And, by one drouthy fear made still,
Forgoing thought of quest or kill.
Now 'neath his dam the fawn may see,
The lean Pack-wolf as cowed as he,
And the tall buck, unflinching, note
The fangs that tore his father's throat.
The pools are shrunk—the streams are dry,
And we be playmates, thou and I,
Till yonder cloud—Good Hunting!—loose
The rain that breaks our Water Truce.

46. In these lines from Kipling's The Jungle Book the cause for the suspension of the usual predator-prey interdependence is stated in

Items 48-50 refer to Rudyard Kipling's

The Two-Sided Man

Much I owe to the Lands that grew—
More to the Lives that fed—
But most to Allah Who gave me two
Separate sides to my head.

Much I reflect on the Good and True
In the Faiths beneath the sun,
But most upon Allah Who gave me two Sides to my head not one.

Wesley's following, Calvin's flock,
White or yellow or bronze,
Shaman, Ju-ju or Angekok,
Minister, Mukamuk, Bonze—

Here is a health, my brothers, to you,
However your prayers are said,
And praised be Allah Who gave me two
Separate sides to my head!

I would go without shirt or shoe,
Friend, tobacco or bread,
Sooner than lose for a minute the two Separate sides of my head!

48. The third and fourth stanzas of Kipling's "The Two-Sided Man" constitute a(n)

A) apostrophe.

15 items (2 points each)

Items 51-54 refer to Sally Ann Roberts's

It All Started with a Packet of Seeds

It all started with a packet of seeds,
To be planted with tenderness and care,
At the base of an Oak, free from all weeds.
They will produce such beauty and flare.

To be planted with tenderness and care,
A cacophony* of colorful flowers,
They will produce such beauty and flare.
With an aroma that can continue for hours.

A cacophony of colorful flowers,
Bright oranges with yellows and reds,
With an aroma that can continue for hours,
Delivered from their fresh flower beds.

Bright oranges with yellows and reds,
At the base of an oak, free from all weeds,
Delivered from their fresh flower beds,
At all started with a packet of seeds.

Items 55-58 refer to Edna St. Vincent Millay's

Love Is Not All

Love is not all: it is not meat nor drink
Nor slumber nor a roof against the rain;
Nor yet a floating spar to men that sink
And rise and sink and rise and sink again;
Love can not fill the thickened lung with breath,
Nor clean the blood, nor set the fractured bone;
Yet many a man is making friends with death
Even as I speak, for lack of love alone.
It well may be that in a difficult hour,
Pinned down by pain and moaning for release,
Or nagged by want past resolution's power,
I might be driven to sell your love for peace,
Or trade the memory of this night for food.
It well may be. I do not think I would.

55. Millay's closed-form poem is an example of a(n)

A) caudate sonnet.
B) Italian sonnet.
C) Miltonic sonnet.
D) Shakespearean sonnet.

Items 59-61 refer to Christina Rossetti's

[I dream of you to wake]

I dream of you to wake: would that I might Dream of you and not wake but slumber on;
Nor find with dreams the dear companion gone,
As summer ended summer birds take flight.
In happy dreams I hold you full in sight,
I blush again who waking look so wan;
Brighter than sunniest day that ever shone,
In happy dreams your smile makes day of night.
Thus only in a dream we are at one,
Thus only in a dream we give and take
The faith that maketh rich who take or give;
If thus to sleep is sweeter than to wake,
To die were surely sweeter than to live,
Though there be nothing new beneath the sun.

59. Rossetti's closed form poem is an example of a(n)

A) Anglo-Norman sonnet.
B) Elizabethan sonnet.
C) Italian sonnet.
D) Miltonic sonnet.

Items 62-65 refer to John F. Kennedy's Inaugural Address, 20 January 1961 (excerpted).

So let us begin anew—remembering on both sides that civility is not a sign of weakness, and sincerity is always subject to proof. Let us never negotiate out of fear. But let us never fear to negotiate.

Let both sides explore what problems unite us instead of belaboring those problems which divide us.

Let both sides, for the first time, formulate serious and precise proposals for the inspection and control of arms--and bring the absolute power to destroy other nations under the absolute control of all nations.

Let both sides seek to invoke the wonders of science instead of its terrors. Together let us explore the stars, conquer the deserts, eradicate disease, tap the ocean depths and encourage the arts and commerce.

Let both sides unite to heed in all corners of the earth the command of Isaiah—to "undo the heavy burdens [. . . and] let the oppressed go free."

And if a beachhead of cooperation may push back the jungle of suspicion, let both sides join in creating a new endeavor, not a new balance of power, but a new world of law, where the strong are just and the weak secure and the peace preserved.

62. In JFK's Inaugural Address the passage "remembering on both sides that civility is not a sign of weakness, and sincerity is always subject to proof" (lines 1-2) is characterized by

A) consonance.

C) paradoxes.
D) similes.
E) understatements.

Required tie-breaking essay prompt on the next page.

Part 4: Tie-Breaking Essay (required)

Note well: Contestants who do not write an essay will be disqualified even if they are not involved in any tie. Any essay that does not demonstrate a sincere effort to discuss the assigned topic will be disqualified. The judge(s) should note carefully this criterion when breaking ties: ranking of essays for tie-breaking purposes should be based primarily on how well the topic has been addressed.

Three sheets of paper have been provided; your written response should reflect the Handbook's notion that an essay is a "moderately brief discussion of a restricted topic": something more than just a few sentences.

Read Kipling's "The Fabulists," and discuss the speaker's explaining, throughout the poem, the truism "Truth is seldom Friend to any crowd" (line 2) upon which the poem's theme regarding the role of the creative artist depends, especially in the context outlined in the first line, "When all the world would keep a matter hid [. . .]."

The Fabulists

When all the world would keep a matter hid,
  Since Truth is seldom Friend to any crowd,
Men write in fable, as old Aesop did,
  Jesting at that which none will name aloud.
And this they needs must do, or it will fall
Unless they please they are not heard at all.

When desperate Folly daily laboureth
  To work confusion upon all we have,
When diligent Sloth demandeth Freedom's death,
  And banded Fear commandeth Honour's grave—
Even in that certain hour before the fall,
Unless men please they are not heard at all.

Needs must all please, yet some not all for need,
  Needs must all toil, yet some not all for gain,
But that men taking pleasure may take heed.
  Whom present toil shall snatch from later pain.
Thus some have toiled, but their reward was small
Since, though they pleased, they were not heard at all.

This was the lock that lay upon our lips,
  This was the yoke that we have undergone,
Denying us all pleasant fellowships
  As in our time and generation.
Our pleasures unpursued age past recall,
And for our pains--we are not heard at all.

What man hears aught except the groaning guns?
  What man heeds aught save* what each instant brings?
When each man's life all imaged life outruns,
  What man shall pleasure in imaginings?
So it hath fallen, as it was bound to fall,
We are not, nor we were not, heard at all.

FOLD along the three longitudinal lines for ease in grading. ➔

Please note that the objective scores should not be altered to reflect the breaking of any ties. Simply adjust ranking.

The thirty items in Part 1 are worth one point each.

The twenty items in Part 2 are worth two points each.

The fifteen items in Part 3 are worth two points each.

DO NOT mark (cross out) actual LETTER answer; mark the answer NUMERAL.

Page numbers refer to the Handbook 12e, the Folger Shakespeare Twelfth Night, the Penguin The Joy Luck Club, and to Washington's Kipling collection.

Part 4: Tie-Breaking Essay

These notes are not intended to be understood as a key for the Tie-Breaking Essay prompt; rather, they should serve the judge(s) as a presentation of critical ideas that might appear in an essay responding to the prompt.

Criteria for judging the Tie-Breaking Essay SHOULD include the degree to which the instructions have been followed, the quality of the critical insight offered in response to the selection,

the overall effectiveness of the written discussion, and the grammatical correctness of the essay.

Note well that the quality of the contestant's critical insight is more important than the contestant's prose style. In short, the Literary Criticism contest is one that promotes the critical analysis of literature. The quality of the writing, which should never go unappreciated, does not trump evidence of critical analysis.

Critical Notes on Rudyard Kipling's "The Fabulists"

Literary concepts that MIGHT be used in a discussion of the role of the creative artist in a world that is defined by the speaker's observation, "Truth is seldom Friend to any crowd," the speaker's emphasis on the world's willingness to "keep a matter hid" serving as the immediate context, include alliteration,

allusion,
anaphora,
assonance,
chiasmus,
consonance,
didactic literature,
epistrophe,
(examples: jeremiad, parody, satire),
imagery,
inversion (anastrophe, hyperbaton),
metaphor,
personification,
reification,
resonance,
rhetorical question,
rhyme and rhythm,
simile,
theme, and tone.

The young writer might well recognize embedded in the poem's first line the clichéd, painfully self-evident truism, ignorance is bliss.

The contestant might perceive in the third stanza the speaker's focus on the small return ("reward") that writers receive—even when what they offer (to themselves as well as their audiences), "the small pleasure in imaginings" (line 28) that are "not heard at all" (each stanza's final phrase [epistrophe]). The didactic, the prophetic, the simple reporting, even when rendered as fable (line 3), as didactic literature, as creative imaginings, fail in the face of apathy, ignorance, and whatever might be understood by line 12's "Unless men please[,] they are not heard at all."

The contestant might recognize that Kipling's attention to form—the iambic lines and the structured rhyme scheme—is antithetical to the inherent lamentation that characterizes the poem, especially, the lines "This was the lock that lay upon our lips, / This was the yoke that we have undergone" (lines 19-20): While Kipling's nineteenth-century versifying is wedded to the characteristics of the closed form, a release from the closed-form strictures might, were it chosen, contribute to the speaker's point, line 28's rhetorical question "What man shall pleasure in imaginings?" Conversely, the contestant might argue that the speaker's lyrical call (qualities that "please" [line12]) for freedom from the lock and the yoke finds adequate voice in spite of the lock and yoke's insistence: the strict iambic and the unflawed rhyme scheme.

NB: The student might recognize something contemporary in Kipling's theme; however, that he or she makes a connection between Kipling's observation and the world immediate should be weighted as value added: essays should be judged (and thus compared) primarily for their literary analysis. That the student finds and argues resonance is, indeed, more than serendipitous, if you will; however, explicatory analysis must herald or weave through any application to the present.
